

Spiritual Development

The study of History involves a sense of curiosity and the mystery of how and why events in the past happened and raises questions as to what could have happened if events had had different results. Artefacts and images are used to give pupils a sense of the past and aid pupils in understanding the people who produced and used these objects. Pupils are encouraged to explore the role played by important individuals in the shaping of the world we live in. Pupils also reflect upon different interpretations of the past and how these interpretations have been arrived at.

Social Development

Pupils explore the similarities and contrasts between past and present societies and are made aware of how, in the main, we are very fortunate to live in 'the modern world' which links with the value of thankfulness.

They examine how other cultures have had a major impact on the development of 'British' culture.

Pupils are also encouraged to build up their own social development through collaborative and team working activities.

The study of social issues is a common theme in History lessons.

Moral Development

Pupils are asked to consider and comment on moral questions and dilemmas. Events and beliefs in the past will often be at odds with what we would consider unacceptable today (and were to some people in the past also). Pupils are encouraged to show compassion for people facing dilemmas and to empathise with decisions which people in the past made and the reasoning behind these decisions. Notions of right and wrong are explored in connection with events from the past, linking with the value of justice.

Cultural Development

Pupils study and are encouraged to gain an understanding of and empathise with, people from different cultural backgrounds. They examine how other cultures have had a major impact on the development of 'British' culture.

Pupils develop a better understanding of our multicultural society through studying links between local, British, European and world history. The contribution of different cultures to human development and progress are studied, which links with the values of wisdom and endurance.
